FLORENCE - ITALY

INTERSPEECH 2011 will be held in the Firenze Fiera Congress and Exhibition Centre located at the heart of (Florence one of the Italy's most popular tourist attraction.

Florence stands on the banks of the Arno River, in a hollow surrounded by the first Chianti hills to the south and the Fiesole hills to the north; these hills are green and undulating dotted with small towns and isolated home steads. As city of art and culture, Florence is the destination of a high proportion of international tourism. Originally a Roman centre (Florentia), it began to acquire a certain importance under the Carolingians but its fortunes date from the time (1115) of its constitution as a Republic

Florence.

In the 13th beginning 14th centuries, aided by increasing economic importance it starts a policy of expansion directed at the largest Tuscan towns. In 1406, once Pisa had fallen, only Siena and Lucca remained free of Florentine rule.

Shortly after (1434), the Republic became a Signoria under the Medici family. Under this Signoria the town gained great masterpieces by the foremost artists of the time (Brunelleschi, Donatello, Botticelli, Masaccio, etc.) becoming the most important European centre of Renaissance culture. When the Medici family died out, the Lorenas gained power in 1737 and, apart from the Napoleonic period (1800-1815), governed Florence and the region until 1859, the year in which Duke Leopold II was expelled and Tuscany became part of the Kingdom of Italy.

Florence contains an exceptional artistic patrimony, glorious testimony to its secular civilization. Cimabue and Giotto, the fathers of Italian painting, lived here, along with Arnolfo and Andrea Pisano, reformists of architecture and sculpture; Brunelleschi, Donatello and Masaccio, founders of the Renaissance; Ghiberti and the Della Robbia; Filippo Lippi and l'Angelico; Botticelli and Paolo Uccello; the universal geniuses Leonardo and Michelangelo.

Their works, along with those of many generations of artists up to the masters of the present century, are gathered in the city's many museums. In Florence, thanks to Dante, the Italian language was born; with Petrarch and Boccaccio literary studies were affirmed; with Humanism the philosophy and values of classical civilization were revived; with Machiavelli modern political science was born; with Guicciardini, historical prose; and with Galileo, modern experimental science. Up to the time of Charlemagne, Florence was a university town. Today it includes many specialized institutes and is an international cultural center. Academies, art schools, scientific institutes and cultural centers all contribute to the city's intense activity.

VENUE

Firenze Fiera SpA is the joint-stock company running the three main exhibition and congress venues in Florence:

- Fortezza da Basso, a Medicean fortress designed by Antonio da Sangallo the Younger in the first half of the 1500s on commission from Alessandro de' Medici;
- Palazzo dei Congressi (conference centre), hosted in a 19th century villa built by the Strozzi family, today it's perfectly restored and houses antique furniture;
- Palazzo degli Affari (business centre), a modern building, multipurpose and versatile, that was designed by the architect Pierluigi Spadolini and inaugurated in 1974.

The three venues stand out as particularly original and very high-profile exhibition and meeting locations. The main shareholders of the company include: the Region of Tuscany, the Municipality, the Province and the Chamber of Commerce of Florence and the Municipality, the Province and the Chamber of Commerce of Prato as well as all the main trade associations of Florence.

The company offers a wide range of world-class events: congresses, conferences and 20 fairs per year. The three venues successfully promote and boost the city of Florence as a high-level conference and exhibition location in a particularly difficult and increasingly competitive sector.

How to get to Florence

Florence is well connected to the rest of Italy and Europe by land and air transport.

Over recent years there has been a considerable increase in air traffic through Vespucci airport which has been constantly renovated as have its services.

Florence is also a central hub for Italy's railway network and the station is easily reached from the main cities in the North and is approximately one hour and a half's train ride from Rome. The high speed train service (TAV) project is now well underway on the Bologna-Florence section and a new station is foreseen for the city too.

The national A1 motorway, the main motorway linking the north and south of Italy, has four exits around the city.

By plane

The Amerigo Vespucci Airport is situated on the north-west outskirts of Florence, 4 kilometres from the city centre and can be reached in approximately 15/20 minutes by taxi or the Ataf/Sita shuttle bus.

Pisa's Galileo Galilei Airport is located at approximately 80 kilometres from Florence. It can be reached with direct flights from the most important European and Italian airports. It is connected to Florence with a direct train service to Florence S.M.N. station and a bus service run by Terravision. The journey takes around one hour and twenty minutes.

By train

The main railway station in Florence is the Santa Maria Novella station. This is located in the city centre, right next to the main tourist sites. Immediately in front of the station is the most important stop for all public buses serving the inner city and outside the city. The second railway station in Florence is Firenze Campo Marte, which is becoming more and more used for specific national and international trains.

By car

If you decide to come to Florence by car, you will find some useful information here. The main tourist area in the city centre is part of the ZTL area, that is a limited traffic zone, which is controlled by short circuit cameras. If you have to reach booked accommodation (hotel, etc.) you can do so but you need to inform the accommodation beforehand so that your car details may be passed on to the municipal police.
